Founder NMFPL

Dear Readers, stakeholders, supporters, team NMFPL and well wishers,
Welcome to the 32nd NMFPL newsletter.

Extruded snacks are those snacks produced by the extrusion process.
Some benefits of extruded food products include:

- Versatility in the formulation of food to create various extruded snacks.
- Enhanced food safety by eliminating pathogenic microorganisms and reducing the microbial load through high temperatures.
- Improved bioavailability of certain nutrients, such as vitamins and minerals, after extrusion.
- Control over the texture and shape of the food.
- Enhanced digestibility, as the process breaks down starch and protein structures under high temperatures and pressures, facilitating better absorption and digestion in the body.

Extruded millets, due to their lower fat content, can be promoted as healthy snacks and health foods. Some examples include multi-millet ready-to-eat extruded snacks such as millet flakes, extruded millet-cereal-pulse snacks, murukus, bhujia, biscuits, cookies, and tortilla chips.

At Nutrimillets, we are also developing these extruded products. I will keep you posted on this. Please do write us to share the feedback on the newsletter on nutrimillets.foodspl@gmail.com.

Best regards

Vidya Gunturkar - Joshi
